Loved, accepted, valued, confident; these are characteristics that define a woman's rock solid identity in Christ. But we live in a culture that threatens to rob women of their God-given spiritual identity. Negative messages about personal worth and value bombard us throughout our lives. They attack the way we think, threatening to rob us of both our life purpose and our identity in Christ. Ultimately, the lies influence who and what we become.

Our only hope is to combat the lies with the truth found in the Bible. In I AM Says, "You Are..." author CJ Rapp teaches us how to take out what she calls the trash, and trade it for the treasure of truth found in Scripture. Focused lessons apply God's truth into the weakest areas of our lives, giving us the power and strength to stand against destructive lies that are as old as time itself. The principles offered in I AM Says, "You Are..." will set women free to become all God created them to be as they practice what they learn in the Bible.

About the Author

Passionate. Transparent. Approachable. Anointed. That's what people say about Bible teacher, speaker, and author CJ Rapp. She has boldly stepped up to take on the issues women face, tenderly sharing God's truth from His love letter, the Bible. Her passion for God's Word is matched by her desire to see lives transformed by its truth—to know who we are in His sight and how He wants us to live in this mixed up world. Her message: the answers to life's greatest challenges lie in a relationship with God and a love for His Word. Her commitment: helping women see themselves as the beloved, beautiful women they are in God's eyes.

"CJ speaks to the heart of women's emotions."
